Saikrishna Thakor

Ms. Sharma

CLC

November 23, 2020

16 Personalities Assessment

This assessment was quite accurate, it included many characteristics I had seen in myself before. This assessment said I am a natural communicator especially in person. In addition to this it said that Protagonists reach every mind through facts and logic or raw emotion. Communicating with people has been really easy for me throughout my life. I found it easy to approach someone new that I wanted to start a conversation with. Recently while debating with anyone online or in person, I have seen that I am able to use facts and raw emotion to speak my mind. I still haven't reached my full potential but in time I know I will reach it.

There were some points in this assessment that were inaccurate. In the friendship section of this assessment it had said Protagonist would not let any friendships slip away through inattention. This is not accurate because I have let some friendships go because we both were not attentive in our friendship. I have always put my share of the effort in but if they aren't putting their share, I would stop trying. I believe that friendships are like passing clouds, new friends come and go throughout our lives all the time. The assessment said one of my weaknesses is being too selfless. I don't think that is true, because I have never spread myself thin by being too selfless. I can be selfless at times but not on a that large of a scale that I spread myself too thin. I believe that being selfless is one of the best things someone can offer. However if a person does it too much, it can be draining and damaging to themself.

I was surprised to learn that I have so many strengths and weaknesses. Throughout my life I have never looked at myself in such a detailed view. However this year due to the quarantine, I have been given time to reflect on myself and grow. Now I can use these strengths and weaknesses to my advantage by knowing that they might occur in my everyday life.The different career paths that I could choose interested me. As a Protagonist it says I want careers that are meaningful. In addition to that it also said that I want a career that can help people. I know I can be very helpful towards people and that's a career path I want to take. However I also want my career to be meaningful so once I retire I know that I have done great things.